“ I remember being woke up at 3am and having a wonderful fun day just hanging out with George drinking some beers on a cool lake in North Carolina not really catching many fish. He loved his job then and talked alot about IBM, even tried to get me hired in at the triangle park IBM operated.

“ A memory....Billie do you remember when You and George and Jerry and I went sledding and afterwards went into the clubhouse and had some wine....going outside I think you hit the ground...it wasn't the wine, it was the dramatic temperature change going outdoors from indoors. We had dinner afterwards at our folks and I buttered my hand instead of the bread... I think we managed to pull it off and my folks didn't suspect we had "imbibed" a little? Or how about the volleyball games in the yard on Washington in New Baltimore, the outhouse and the word-burning stove...we were pioneers! Made for pleasant times. Oh, and bowling at Timber Lanes for Bulldog's...when George came to pick you up when he was on Leave from Marines.
