“ Kevin, Pat, and Jennifer: Josh came to work on our farm as a youngster with David W. He impressed us both with the way he carried himself at such a young age. He was quiet, with a big, generous smile and a strong back. Once David got a full-time job Josh was our main hand. I started to find jobs just to have Josh around. We cut and stacked hay, stretched fence, built barns, messed with the live stock and the whole time Josh would patiently work while I rambled on and finally at the end of a long story say "yes sir" just to let me know he was listening. Never once did I hear a complaint or a mean word. I never had to give directions or explain what I wanted. Josh knew what to do and would often finish my incomplete plans and thoughts on his own. Then Josh entered high school and by a great stroke of luck ended up in my advisory group. Over four years I watched him grow from a shy youngster who avoided girls to a strong young man that the girls always wanted to sit next to. Saraliz and I were so disappointed the day Josh told us he had found a full-time job. "I'll still come by and help" was a small consolation. In his thoughtful manner he found a "replacement" and brought Brian to be our new helper. Josh worked side-by-side with me, ate at our table, and kind of took the place our two grown sons who lived on the other side of the country. Sometimes Josh would go to school all day, work with me till dark, and then I'd see him out in the field with his dogs chasing a coon. Hard worker, quiet, confident, camper, hunter, fisherman--Josh was a man's man and I'm proud to say he was my friend. George Christoph
